HEADLINE DO'S

---

- ❖ Read the article, especially the opening paragraphs, to understand the purpose and main idea.
  - ❖ Give the most general, overall focus/summary of the story.
  - ❖ Remember that the headline may be the only reason the reader decides to read the story (Entry point.)
  - ❖ Avoid headlines that can have more than one interpretation.

- ❖ Limit the number of words -- 6 to 10, generally
  - ❖ Use strong, active verbs. (To be verbs are generally understood, but not written out.)
  - ❖ Use present tense verbs.
  - ❖ Express a complete thought. Headlines usually read like simple sentences.

❖ Use a secondary headline -- or subhead -- to convey an additional idea of a story.

❖ Substitute a comma for the word "and."

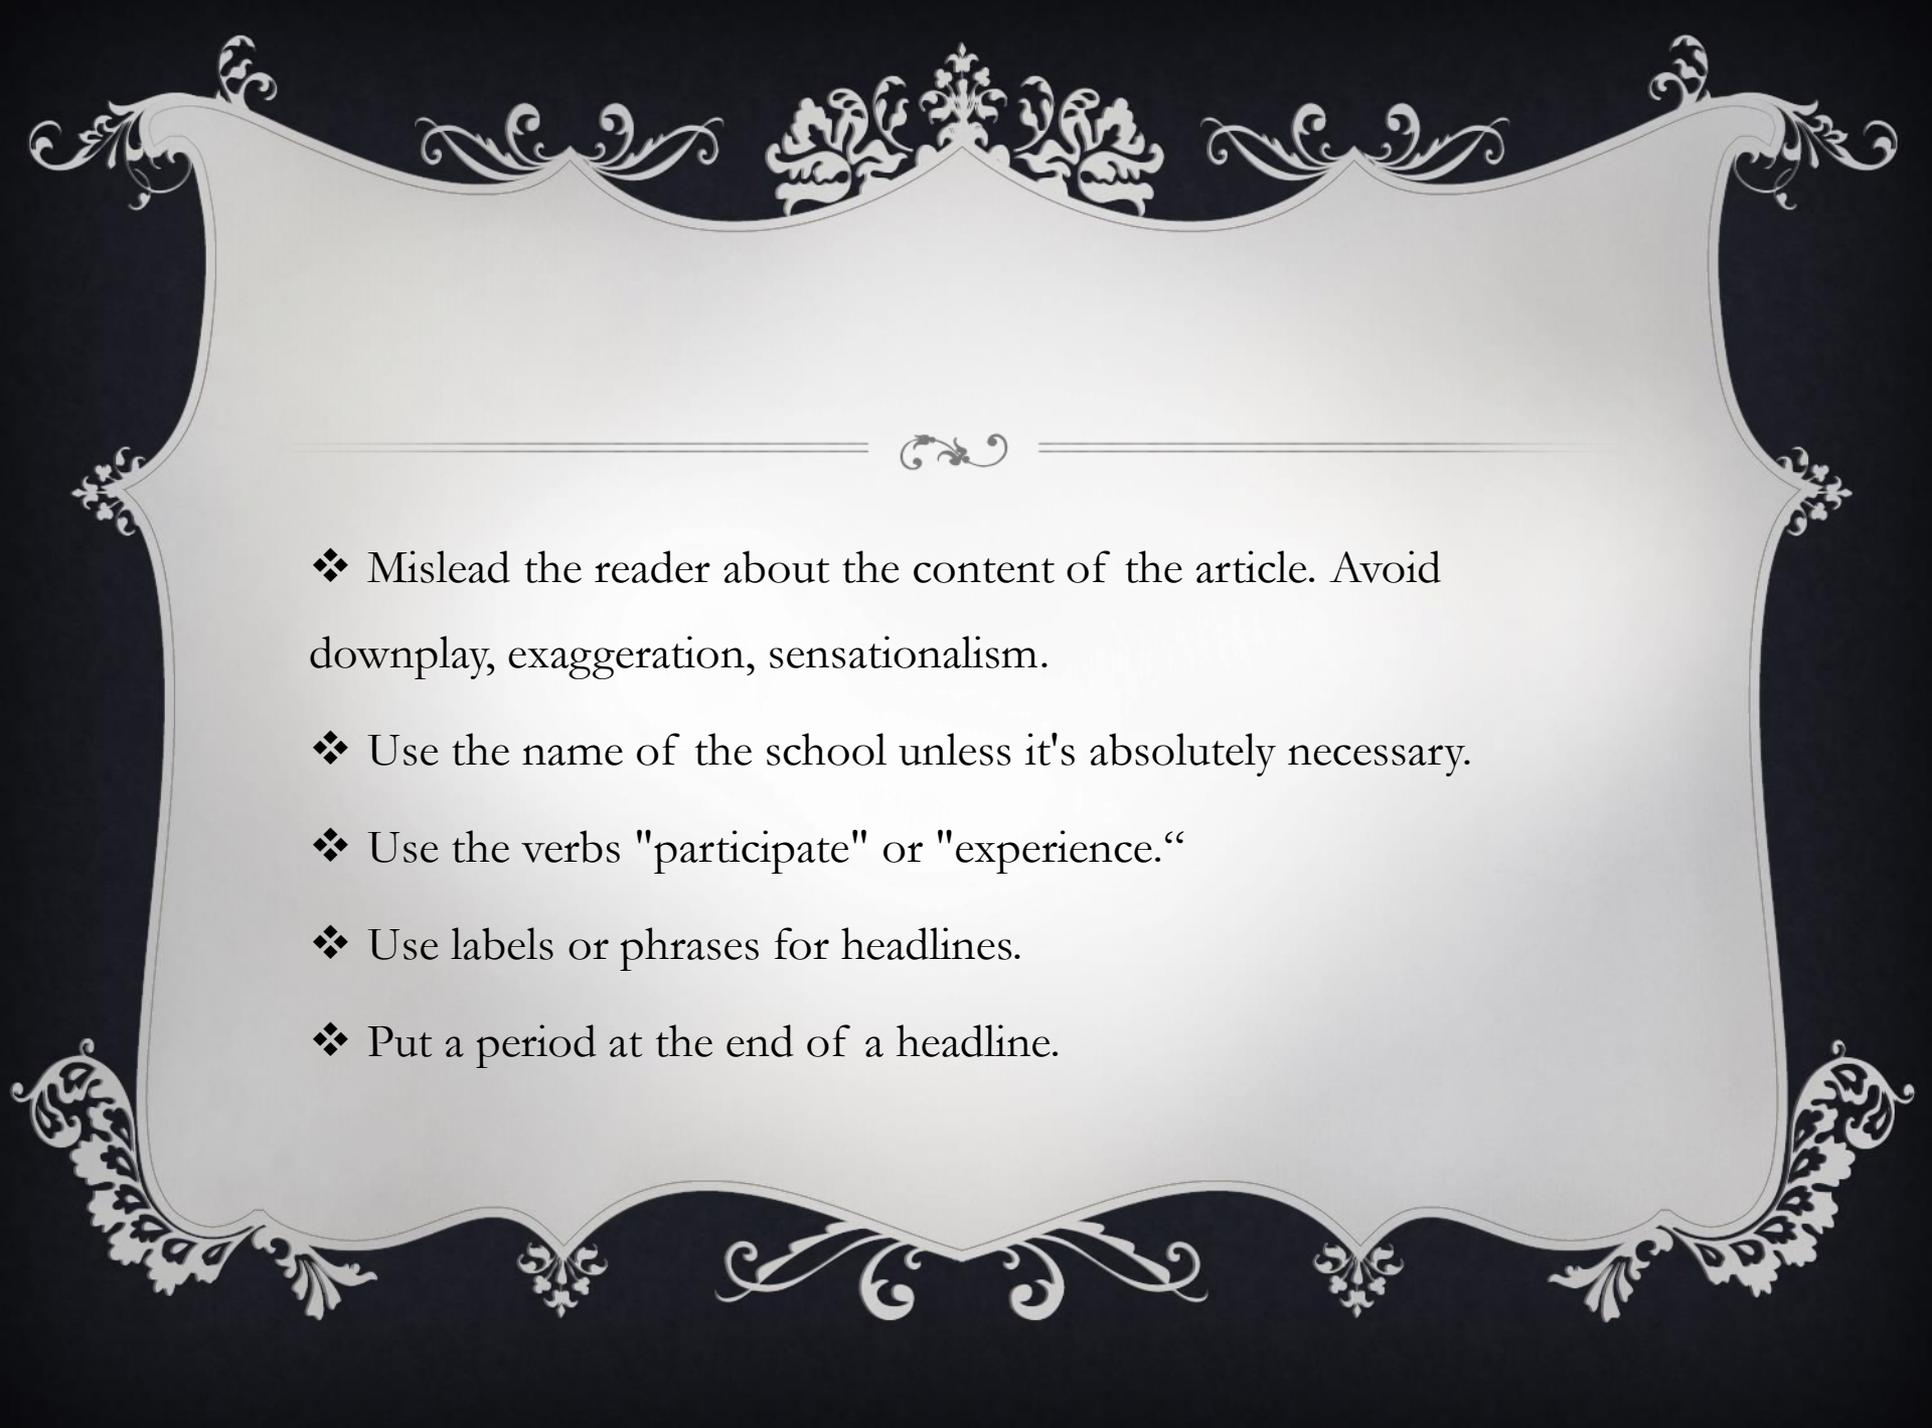

❖ Capitalize only the first word and proper nouns and adjectives.
(This rule can be waived if your newspaper's style is for up-style headlines.)

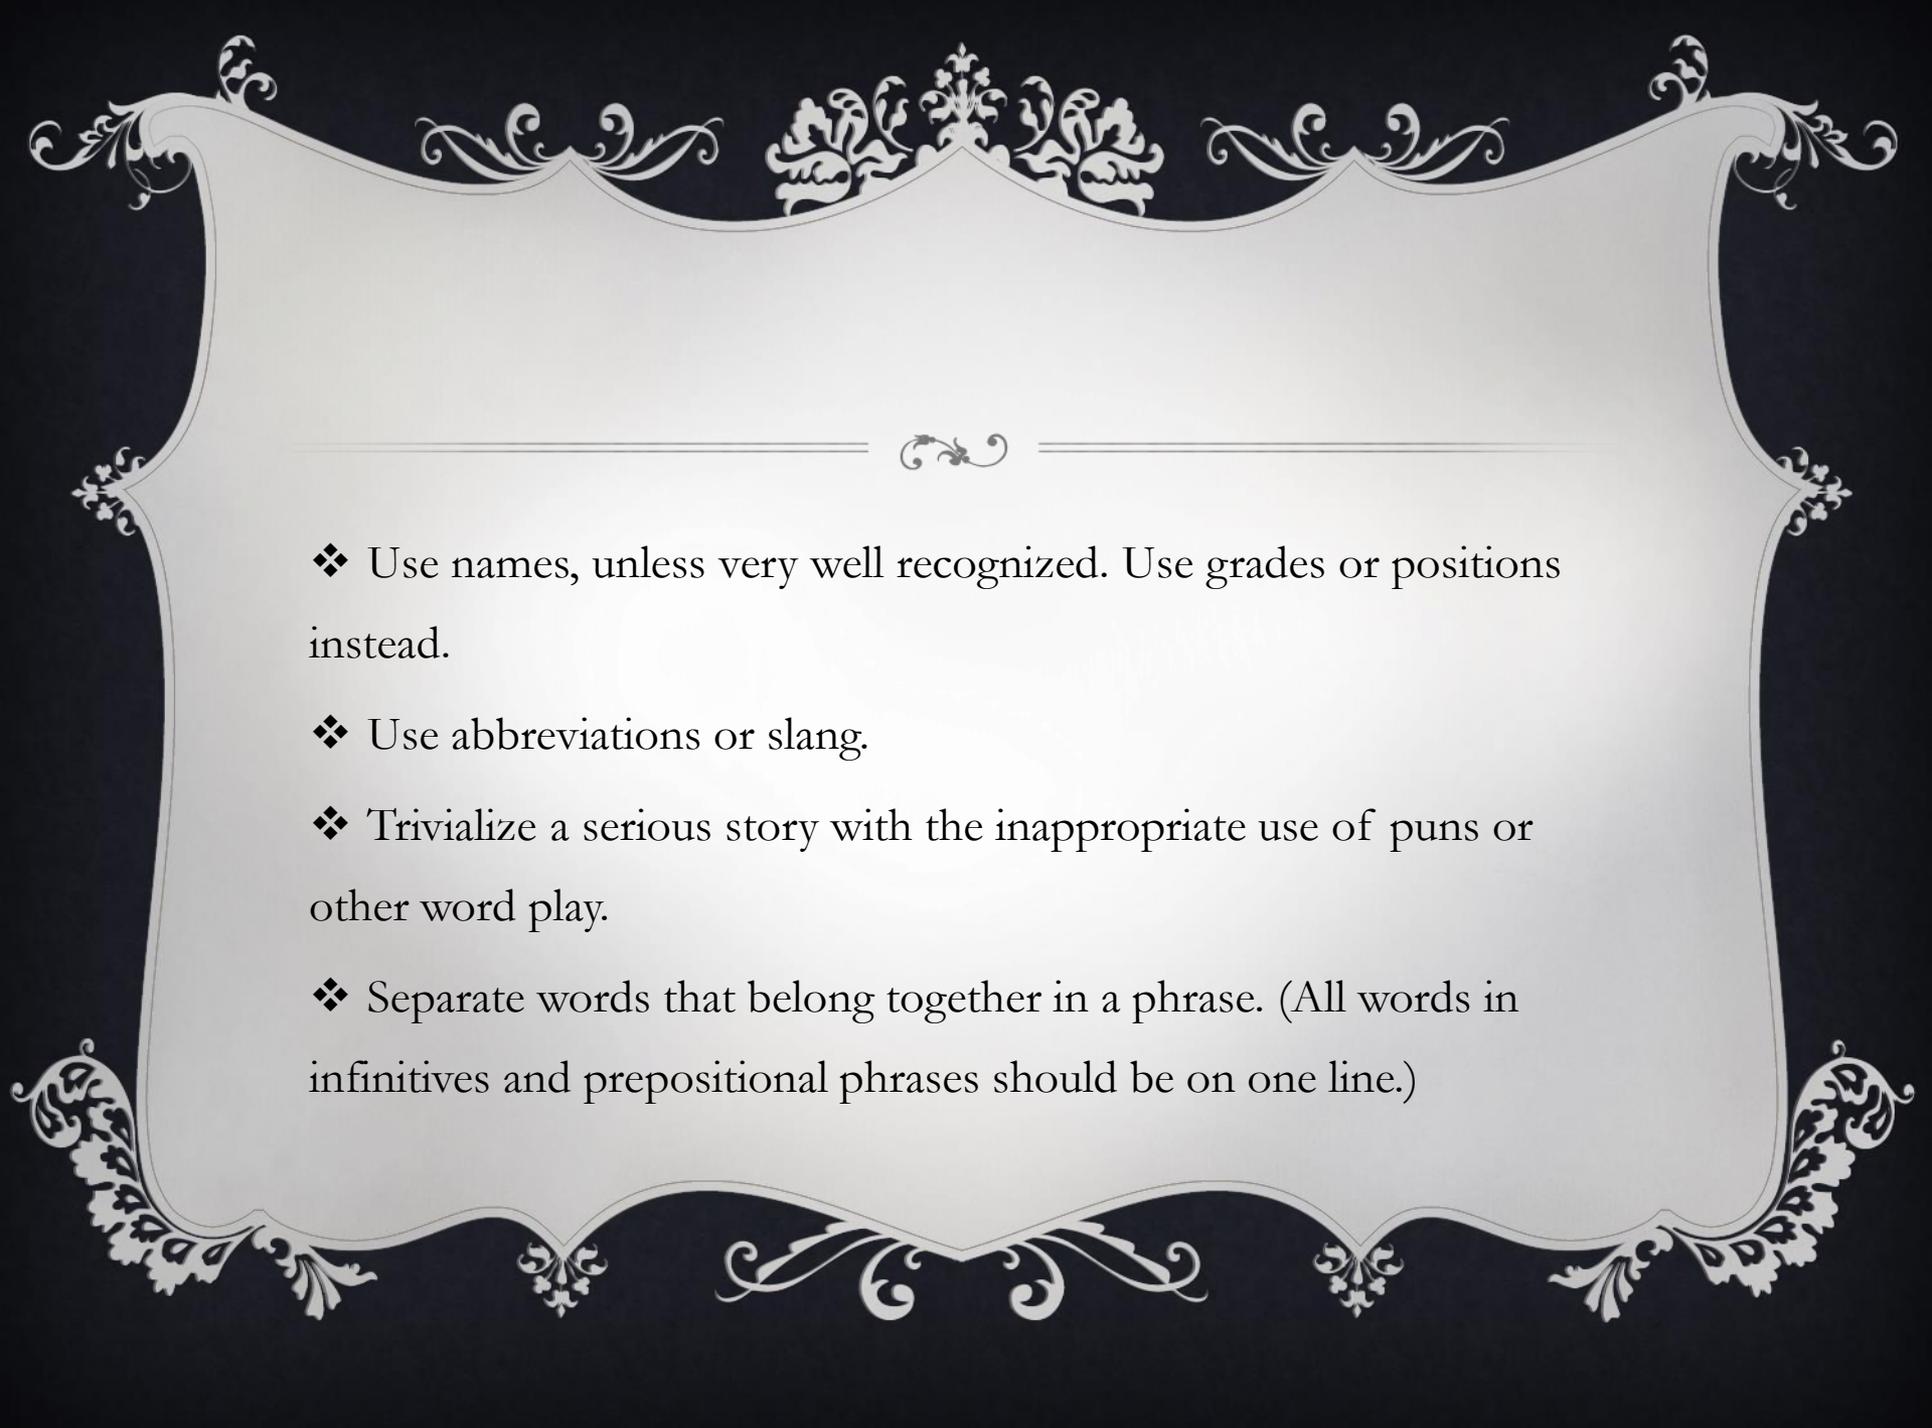

❖ Write a headline that is grammatically correct.

HEADLINE DON'TS

---

- ❖ Mislead the reader about the content of the article. Avoid downplay, exaggeration, sensationalism.
  - ❖ Use the name of the school unless it's absolutely necessary.
  - ❖ Use the verbs "participate" or "experience."
  - ❖ Use labels or phrases for headlines.
  - ❖ Put a period at the end of a headline.

❖ Use names, unless very well recognized. Use grades or positions instead.

❖ Use abbreviations or slang.

❖ Trivialize a serious story with the inappropriate use of puns or other word play.

❖ Separate words that belong together in a phrase. (All words in infinitives and prepositional phrases should be on one line.)

- ❖ Use more than one banner headline on a page.
  - ❖ Repeat words on the same page. (Very common on sports pages.)
  - ❖ Capitalize every word or every important word.
  - ❖ Use "a," "an" or "the."

CAN YOU FIX THEM?
