

1. What has your work taught you about the importance of a free press?
2. Do you believe that you are or were responsible chiefly to the public, the government or your own personal interests when investigating and writing?
Why?
3. What do you think is the most important job of journalists and the press in general?
4. Do you think that there is any information that is “too dangerous” to print?
Why or why not?
5. What risks did you take in revealing a story?
Were those risks worth it?
Why or why not?
6. The news media is undergoing drastic changes because of opportunities for independent journalism on blogs, the ability to constantly update stories online and because many people prefer to read news online.
What do you think about that?
Will those factors change journalism for the better or the worse?
Why?
